Historical Note

When the Southern Baptist Convention was formed in 1845, Convention leaders quickly adopted a resolution to create a “Board of Managers for Foreign Missions.” Missionaries were then sent to China, Liberia, and the Far East. Over the next hundred years, the Southern Baptist foreign missions grew from a handful of missionaries to more than 1,000 missionaries in 35 countries. Throughout this period of growth, the necessity of support staff to assist the needs of missionaries and the rest of the Southern Baptist body was obvious. Based out of Richmond Virginia, the Foreign Mission Board Executive Office oversaw missionary work and served as a liaison between missionaries and the Convention.

Corresponding Secretaries led the FMB Executive Office in its task. James Barnett Taylor was the first man appointed to this position. He served from June, 1846 to December, 1871. He was followed by Henry Allen Tupper, who filled the position until June, 1893. Like Taylor, Tupper helped expand the vision of the FMB by opening several new mission fields. Robert Josiah Willingham advanced the FMB to the next century by serving until December, 1914. Willingham’s administration was characterized by an awakening of Southern Baptist laymen to the task of global missions. James Franklin Love (1915 – 1928) followed Willingham’s success with a period of greater growth and the ambitious effort to raise $75,000,000 in five years, called the “75 million campaign.”

Upon Love’s death in 1928, the position of Corresponding secretary was renamed Executive Secretary. T. Branson Ray (1929 – 1932) was named to the position, where he weathered the storm of financial depression. Charles Edward Maddry, appointed in 1933, served the Foreign Mission Board for 12 years by bringing it out of debt and expanding its mission force. Milledge Theron Rankin (1945 – 1953) followed Maddry’s success with a strong emphasis on expansion and denominational awareness. Baker James Cauthen (previously secretary for the Orient) began his long and productive tenure in 1954. When Cauthen retired in 1979, the FMB had expanded to 3,008 missionaries in 94 countries. R. Keith Parks was elected Executive Secretary January 1, 1980.

Scope and Content:

The International Mission Board Executive Office Records span the history of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board (1845 – 1995). The collection includes official documents of FMB administrators, missionaries, regional directors, and Baptists from foreign fields. Much of the collection contains correspondence between denominational leaders and the Executive Secretaries. The early documents from this collection include letters from Basil Manly, John Broadus, E. Y. Mullins, Lansing Burrows, and many more significant figures from the formative years of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The papers are arranged in chronological order and then alphabetically by folder title. The titles have been saved in a database format to provide an alphabetical listing of the folders as found below. They are contained in 39 boxes and are approximately 39 linear feet in size. While the collection contains documents from 1845 – 1995, the majority of the files are from the 1950s, 60s, and 70s – the period Baker J. Cauthen served as Executive Secretary of the FMB. Many of these files contain information concerning FMB dealings with other agencies and organizations. These agencies include the SBC Executive Committee, SBC Home Mission Board, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Women’s Missionary Union, and Baptist World Alliance. The records were transferred from the International Mission Board Archives in 2004. This record series is open to researchers.
