Historical Note

The Home Mission Board (now called North American Mission Board) is one of the oldest organizations of the Southern Baptist Convention. Since the SBC's founding in 1845, the HMB has trained and employed missionaries for various areas of service across North America. First located in Marion, Alabama, the HMB relocated to Atlanta, Georgia in 1882. The following men served as corresponding secretaries of the Board, from 1845 to 1997: Russell Holman (1845-1851; 1857-1862), T. F. Curtis (1852-1853), Joseph Walker (1853-1857), M. T. Sumner (1862-1875), W. H. McIntosh (1875-1882), Isaac Taylor Tichenor (1882-1899), F. H. Kerfoot (1900-1901), F. C. McConnell (1901-1903), B. D. Gray (1903-1928), J. B. Lawrence (1929-1953), S. Courts Redford (1954-1964), Arthur B. Rutledge (1965-1976), William G. Tanner (1977-1987), and Larry Lewis (1987-1996). In 1997, the Home Mission Board, Brotherhood Commission, and Radio and Television Commission joined together to form the North American Mission Board.

The early decades of the Board's history were years of organization for the HMB. At the SBC's organizational meeting in Augusta, Georgia, in 1845, the delegates created two boards for missions work. First called the "Board of Domestic Missions," the organization expanded to include Indian missions in 1855, and then changed its name to the "Domestic and Indian Mission Board." In 1873, the DIMB merged with the Sunday School Board (organized in 1863) and became known as the "Domestic and Indian Mission and Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention." A year later, the name was shortened to the "Home Mission Board."

Other initiatives of the Home Mission Board expanded as well. The period from 1882 through 1928 was especially fruitful for the HMB, much of which was a result of the compelling leadership of Isaac Taylor Tichenor, who served as corresponding secretary from 1882 to 1899. Under Tichenor's administration, the HMB moved from Marion, Alabama, to Atlanta, Georgia; extended mission work into western areas of the United States and on the island of Cuba; organized a church building department; and developed Sunday school literature (the publication for which he transferred to the Baptist Sunday School Board at its organization in 1891). During B. D. Gray's administration, the HMB began mission work in the Panama Canal Zone, a mountain missions program in the Appalachia region of the country, a deaf persons' ministry, and work with Jewish communities. This fruitful period of HMB initiatives was clouded, however, by the 1928 – 1929 defalcation of Clinton S. Carnes, treasurer of the HMB, who was accused of embezzling $900,000 from the Board.

Despite its hardships, the Home Mission Board continued expansion throughout the twentieth century. J. B. Lawrence succeeded Gray as corresponding secretary of the Board in 1929. Coming on the heels of the Carnes scandal and at the dawn of the nation's Great Depression, Lawrence and the Board incurred a massive debt and the number of HMB missionaries dropped from 1,600 to 106. Samuel Courts Redford served next as corresponding secretary for the Board, from 1954 – 1964. Highlights from the Lawrence and Redford administrations include the development of city missions (1941), migrant missions (1948), literacy missions (1960), and mission work in Puerto Rico (1963). Arthur B. Rutledge (1965 – 1976), William G. Tanner (1977 – 1987), and Larry Lewis (1987 – 1996) served as corresponding secretaries of the HMB during the latter decades of the twentieth century. In 1965, the HMB appointed the first US-2 missionaries (usually college graduates who volunteered for two years of missionary service), and, in 1977, created the Mission Service Corps. In 1995, the Board celebrated its 150th anniversary, and HMB staff moved to a new five-story office complex 22 miles north of Atlanta. The SBC's Covenant for a New Century (created in 1995) had combined the HMB, the Christian Life Commission, and the Brotherhood Commission into a new agency, the North American Mission Board, by 1997.

Scope and Content Note

This Executive Office series of the Home Mission Board records includes 36 linear feet of material in 33 record boxes. Records in this series span the years 1882 to 1988 and cover the administrations of Isaac Taylor Tichenor (1882 – 1899), Baron DeKalb Gray (1903 – 1928), J. B. Lawrence (1929 – 1953), Samuel Courts Redford (1954 – 1964), Arthur B. Rutledge (1965 – 1976), and William G. Tanner (1977 – 1987). Also included are files from assistant executive secretary-treasurers G. Frank Garrison and Fred B. Moseley and executive assistant Leland H. Waters. The collection is arranged in chronological order by administration, and then alphabetically within each administration.

The Home Mission Board Executive Office Files include a plethora of information reflective of the history of the Home Mission Board. The collection includes materials on the following HMB programs and initiatives: chaplains, Chinese work, city missions, deaf work, French missions, Indian work, Jewish work, language missions, migrant work, Negro mission work, and rural work. Files with information and correspondence on HMB missions to Brazil, Cuba, Mexico, Panama, and Puerto Rico are also contained in the collection. Additionally, the HMB

Executive Office files include information on the Baptist World Alliance, the Crisis Committee of 1968, Week of Prayer emphasis, and the Woman's Missionary Union. Some of the earliest items in the collection are two letter books from the administration of Isaac T. Tichenor. These books cover the decades of the late nineteenth century and include correspondence on programs and initiatives Tichenor began during his fruitful directorship of the HMB. The B. D. Gray materials include several folders on the defalcation of C. S. Carnes, who served as the treasurer under Gray, and who was accused of embezzling $900,000 from the Home Mission Board in the 1920s. The Redford materials include various surveys on HMB programs and missions.
