Historical Sketch

The Communication Division of the Home Mission Board began in 1959 as the Division of Education and Promotion. Renamed the Communication Division in 1966, departments included in the Division were the Department of Editorial Services, Department of Missionary Education, Audiovisuals Department, and Art Services Department. The objective for the division was, “to provide plans, materials, and information to churches, associations, state conventions, and other Southern Baptist Convention agencies in the support of and involvement in missions in the homeland.” In 1988, a reorganization of the Art Services Department, Audiovisuals Department, Editorial Services, and Promotion Department (Department of Missionary Education), changed into the Materials Production Department, Media Department, and Periodicals Department.

Dr. Luther Orba (L. O.) Griffith became the director of the Communication Division in 1959 and remained in the position until his retirement in 1971. He came to the Home Mission Board after serving as Associate Executive Secretary for the Kentucky Baptist Convention. He was a graduate of Georgetown College, Georgetown, Kentucky (with a Bachelor of Arts) and Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky (with a Master of Theology and Doctor of Divinity). Dr. Griffith was a pastor in Kentucky for about twenty years before his work with the Kentucky Baptist Convention. After his retirement from the Communication Division, Dr. Griffith pastored Faith Baptist Mission, Stockbridge, Georgia from 1972 – 1976, which reconstituted as Griffith Memorial Baptist Church in honor of Dr. Griffith. James M. Sapp succeeded Dr.

Griffith, as director of the Communication Division, and was then followed by Kenneth Day in 1979.

Scope and Content Note

The Home Mission Board Communication Division Collection (1948 – 1977) contains four and one-half linear feet of materials. Materials included in the collection are articles, clippings, correspondence, minutes, pamphlets, and reports, which are arranged alphabetically by subject.

The collection comes from the files of Luther Orba (L. O.) Griffith, during his tenure as Communication Division director (1959 – 1971), with some additional files from his successor, James M. Sapp. The two series are arranged chronologically based on tenure and then alphabetically by subject within the respective series. Subjects addressed in the collection include: Cuban missions, Jewish missions, juvenile rehabilitation, migrant missions, mountain missions, National Baptists, Panama, pioneer missions, program planning, San Blas Indians, schools of missions (later world missions conferences), and student work. Some additional materials come from Courts Redford, who was the Executive Secretary of the Home Mission Board.

Researchers should refer to the Home Mission Board Department of Missionary Education Collection (AR 631 – 5) and the Home Mission Board Editorial Services Department Collection (AR 631 – 8) for additional information related to the Communication Division.
