Biographical Sketch – James Marion Frost

Pastor, denominational leader, and founder and first secretary of the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. James Marion Frost was born February 10, 1848 in Georgetown, Kentucky. He graduated from Georgetown College and there married Nanney Riley. He served as pastor of the following churches: First, Maysville, Kentucky; Upper Street (now Calvary Baptist), Lexington, Kentucky; First, Staunton, Virginia; First, Selma, Alabama; Leigh Street, Richmond, Virginia; and First, Nashville, Tennessee. His children were Howard, Margaret, Marian, Marcellus, and Virginius.

While pastor in Richmond, Frost framed resolutions which led to the establishment of the Sunday School Board. He first advocated that the denomination produce its own printed literature through a board of publication, under the direct control of the Convention, and coordinate with the Foreign Mission Board and Home Mission Board. This was proposed in resolutions released through the Religious Herald on February 27, 1890. The Baptist papers in the various states, except the Baptist and Reflector (Tennessee) and the Western Recorder (Kentucky), opposed Frost's resolutions editorially. Frost's proposal was considered at the Fort Worth Convention (1890), and a Sunday school committee was set up, which served for one year, with headquarters in Louisville. At the Convention in Birmingham the following year (1891), Frost made a motion that the matter should be referred to yet another committee, consisting of one member from each state, and that their report would be made a special order before that session of the Convention. Frost and James Bruton Gambrell, who were made subcommittee to frame the report for the larger committee, held an all-day conference harmonizing their own views concerning the best approach to the perplexing problem. Compromises were reached whereby Gambrell would write the last paragraph of the report and Frost would pen the last sentence. Gambrell stressed complete freedom of the local church in purchasing its literature, while Frost pleaded that a fair chance be given to the new board to live and prosper.

With President Jonathan Haralson presiding, the Convention dealt with the final resolutions which were read by Frost recommending a Sunday School Board. With the timely assistance of John Albert Broadus, the report was adopted without debate and with only thirteen opposing votes. After much insistence, Frost agreed to serve as first secretary of the board. On July 1, 1891, he came to Nashville, where the board was to be located. He was to experience considerable loneliness because many people, misunderstanding his mission, received him reluctantly. In borrowed quarters and handicapped by limited resources, Frost began his new duties. After having served only eighteen months and still yearning for the pastorate, he felt that he could not decline the call to become pastor of the First Baptist Church in Nashville. In 1896, however, he returned to the secretaryship of the board and served in that capacity until his death in 1916.

Frost's decisions as first secretary largely determined the pattern of the board's future growth. He led it to be a publishing house instead of a printing enterprise. He worked for a strong and acceptable curriculum and further developed the graded series of lessons. He projected the Sunday school educational program as well as the teacher-training program. He also worked out reliable standards for the measurement of efficiency in Sunday school progress. While he was interested in the development of Sunday school work, even through interdenominational and nondenominational movements, he strove constantly to keep Southern Baptist Sunday schools closely related to the churches and denomination. This latter emphasis proved to be one of the major contributions of his ministry. He helped develop the Baptist Young People's Union. The board became the supplier of general materials for the churches and the denomination and entered into the book-publishing ministry during his tenure. In addition, Frost found time to write such outstanding books as Moral Dignity of Baptism (1905), The Memorial Supper (1908), The School and the Church (1911), Our Church Life (1909), An Experience of Grace (1908), and Sunday School Board History and Work (1914). At the time of his death, the board had prospered sufficiently to erect its own building of five floors, at 161 Eighth Avenue, North, and dedicated it free of debt in 1914.

His health finally gave way, however, while he was en route to a field engagement in 1916. After much suffering, he passed away at his home in Nashville, Tennessee, October 30, 1916. Funeral services were held in Nashville and Louisville. Interment was at Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville, Kentucky.

Biographical Sketch – Theodore Percy Bell

Pastor, denominational leader, and editor, Theodore Percy Bell was born February 2, 1852 in Beaufort, South Carolina. He was educated at the University of South Carolina and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He served as pastor to Baptist churches in South Carolina, leading the First Baptist Church, Anderson, from 1880 to 1886. From 1886 to 1893 he was assistant corresponding secretary of the Foreign Mission Board and editor of the Foreign Mission Journal.

Bell became the corresponding secretary of the Sunday School Board, May 1, 1893, succeeding James Marion Frost, who had been his pastor in Richmond. While at the Sunday School Board he introduced Missionary Day and Children's Day, and led the board to make its first contribution to a Bible fund. During his three years of service, he did much to strengthen and enlarge the work of the board. He was succeeded by Frost, who again became secretary March 1, 1896.

Bell purchased the Christian Index (Georgia), in January, 1896, with I. J. Van Ness, and was its senior editor until 1915, when ill health compelled his retirement. He died in Asheville, North Carolina on October 2, 1916.

Scope and Content Note

The collection is divided into several series including official correspondence, family and personal correspondence, subject files (including sermons), and letter press books. The correspondence is found in the alphabetical correspondence files and the letter press volumes that include outgoing letter by Frost and Bell. The collection includes letters to and from leading Baptist leaders and co-workers at the Board.

The papers document the early history of the Sunday School Board and its efforts to survive as a publishing enterprise for Baptists in the South. The collection details the work of the early field agents for the Board and includes their periodic reports to Frost and Bell. The papers also record the work between the various agencies of the Southern Baptist Convention. This is seen in the correspondence with leaders at the Foreign Mission Board, the Home Mission Board, and the Woman's Missionary Union.

Other matters covered in the papers include: the formation of the Baptist World Alliance, the development of the Baptist Young Peoples Movement, controversy with the American Baptist Publication Society, political matters within the Southern Baptist Convention, doctrinal and theological issues, Bible versions, internal working of the Board, request for Sunday School material, appeals from missionaries for assistance, and invitations for Frost or Bell to speak on behalf of the Board.

The collection includes some family correspondence related to Frost. Also included are his sermons and scrapbooks. The sermons date from 1871 to 1885 and were preached at his pastorates in Maysville and Lexington, Kentucky and Staunton, Virginia. The letter press volumes include the outgoing correspondence of Frost and Bell from 1893 to 1915. Most of these volumes include an index by the name of the correspondent.

Arrangement

The collection is divided into several series including official correspondence, family and personal correspondence, subject files (including sermons), and letter press books. Each series is arranged in alphabetical order by folder title.
