Biographical Sketch

Southern Baptist Convention missionary to Lebanon and the Middle East, David King was born in Michigan in 1925. After serving in the United States Air Force during the Second World War, he attended Howard Payne University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. During his time at Southwestern, King was pastor at several churches in the nearby area. In 1946, King married Maxine Claude, and the couple had one child.

Upon his graduation from Southwestern Seminary, King was appointed by the SBC's Foreign Mission Board, in 1959, as missionary to the Arab section of the Near East, based in Beirut, Lebanon. In addition to his missionary activities, King served as a New Testament and Greek professor at the Arab Baptist Theological Seminary in Beirut, as well as directing the Middle East Evangelism Ministry. Throughout his time in the Middle East, King argued passionately for the spiritual and financial support needed to adequately continue the mission's work. The Kings were in Lebanon in the years leading up to the Lebanese Civil War. King and his wife traveled to other parts of the Middle East to lead conferences, retreats, and training opportunities for national leaders. They retired in 1989 after thirty years of service to the Board.
