The program accomplished this by operating the Southern Baptist Historical Library and Archives, publishing a scholarly journal on Baptist history, and producing resources related to Baptist history and heritage. The records include files maintained by the Executive Director and other staff members. They include correspondence, subject and topical files, minutes, meeting and conference information, research studies, financial files, and published resources and pamphlet projects files.

Historical Sketch

Several early attempts were made by Southern Baptists to preserve their history. Beginning in 1921 the Southern Baptist Convention appointed a committee on the preservation of Baptist History. The Sunday School Board in 1933 was assigned the responsibility of Baptist History when the Committee was dissolved. In 1936 another committee on the preservation of Baptist history was authorized which led in 1938 to the formation of the Southern Baptist Historical Society. Originally it was intended to produce a centennial history of the Convention in 1945. This society served as the history agency until August 24, 1951 when the Historical Commission was chartered. The Society was restructured as an auxiliary to the new Historical Commission. Norman W. Cox was elected Executive Secretary in August, 1950 and began work in February, 1951. During this period the materials of the Historical Society were integrated with the Dargan Library of the Sunday School Board which became the Dargan-Carver Library in 1953. In 1952 the Commission began a microfilming program to consolidate scattered Baptist materials. Davis C. Woolley succeeded Cox serving until his death in 1971. Lynn E. May Jr. who served as Research Director from 1956 to 1971 followed Woolley as chief executive in 1971 serving until 1995. May expanded the library as well as the publication efforts through pamphlets, oral history program, microfilming endeavors, and the production of the quarterly journal Baptist History and Heritage. Slayden Yarborough became the Executive Director and led the agency from 1995 until its dissolution by the Southern Baptist Convention in 1997. The task of communicating Baptist history to Southern Baptist churches was assigned to LifeWay Christian Resources. The Southern Baptist Historical Library and Archives continued under the governance of the Council of Seminary Presidents.

Scope and Content Notes

The Historical Commission Records are a collection of the official papers of the Commission from before its organization in 1951 to its dissolution by the Southern Baptist Convention action June 19, 1997. Included in the collection are the official minutes of the Commission and the book of reports for the annual meeting of the Commission and the Southern Baptist Historical Society, research projects, information on the BIRS (Baptist Information Retrieval System), the production of the Encyclopedia of Southern Baptists, budgets, oral histories plans and developments, files on pamphlet series production, as well as files on involvement in the Inter-Agency Council of the Southern Baptist Convention and Dargan-Carver Library.

The correspondence files are usually related to historical questions and requests for information. The correspondence files include mostly executive director correspondence, but does include files of other staff members. The developments and promotion of specific products, including services such as microfilming of church and other Baptist resources are a large part of the collection. Also included is correspondence with other Southern Baptist Convention leaders and staff members. Records related to the construction of the Southern Baptist Convention building and the establishment of the Southern Baptist Historical Library and Archives are found in the records.
